

10 Envoi

Berlin's gravestone in the Jewish quarter of Wolvercote cemetery, near Oxford.

The Hebrew inscriptions read

Here is buried

Yeshayahu [Isaiah], son of Menachem Mendel

May his soul be bound in the bond of eternal life

Even if Berlin was right not to believe in a literal afterlife, he will endure in his writings and recordings, in the College he founded, and for a time in the memories of those who knew him.
